Wedding chaperone
Services

A Pawfect Day

Your pets are a huge part of your life so why wouldn't you want them to share in your special day.

The dilemma for couples has always been one of logistics – who will bring the dog to the wedding venue & take care of them whilst they are there and then return them home afterwards? It is difficult for a member of the wedding party to remain actively involved in the wedding whilst they are also focusing on a dog and its needs.

The concept of having your beloved pet by your side on your wedding day is now a reality, with an increasing number of venues now welcoming dogs to be part of wedding celebrations. However, to make all this possible practically, a pet chaperone service is needed to ensure that your pet has everything they need.

Tails of Pawfection Chaperone Services

We can occupy your best friend whilst you get ready for your big day and then chaperone them to the venue to be by your side in all your professional wedding photographs.

We will tailor a bespoke package to suit your individual needs so that your beloved friend can be as involved as you would like them to be. It is important that we meet your needs but that we work together to meet the personality and needs of your pet too.

We can then take them back to your home and stay with them overnight until you return.

Our services commence by us coming to your home to meet you and your pet in person, this is to ensure that both you and your four-legged friend are happy with your chosen chaperone. Once everyone has become acquainted and you are completely comfortable, we will sit with you, and you can tell us exactly how you wish your pet to be involved in your 'pawfect' wedding day.

Where possible we will try to maintain your dog's usual routine, ensuring that they are exercised before leaving, they have their usual mealtime, and we have their favourite snacks/treats with them.

We try and encourage you to select a quiet area for your dog at the wedding, maybe a small side room so that we can bring some of your dog's home comforts such as their bed, blanket, or favourite toys. This allows us space to take and to settle them should the ceremony become too overwhelming for them.

To remove added stress we will arrive in the morning, or even the night before for an overnight stay and will take of your pets needs by chaperoning them throughout your wedding period, for as long as you need.

- Initial consultation and introduction to your pet.
- Unlimited support in the form of calls/texts/emails to the run up of your wedding day.

Tips

- Find a dog-friendly venue.
- Check with your registrar.
- Assign a pet-sitter.
- Discuss your requirements with your photographer.
- Ensure that all guests will be aware that a dog is attending the wedding, in case of allergies. A lovely idea is to send out a 'save the date' card featuring a photo of your dog.
- If you are considering a special dog wedding collar or accessory, make sure that it is safe and comfortable for your dog. Let them get accustomed to it before the big day. Certain flowers or foliage can be poisonous to dogs, so it is vital to check.
- The chances are your dog will be interacting with and meeting lots of people. Take a moment to think about how they are with people. Do they jump up, get overwhelmed easily or will they just take it in their stride?

- Some dogs are often nervous in new places so it is worth thinking about how you can try and minimise any anxiety they might have. Perhaps you can take them to the venue/location a few times before the big day to get familiar with it. If possible, try and find a 'safe' space for them to have their crate or bed in. An out of the way corner they can retreat to when they need a time out.
